A handsome blend of leather, wood, and aged metal gives the Cashiers Bed Bench a distinctive presence at the foot of the bed. Its tailored proportions and carefully considered materials recall the collected furnishings of a gracious country residence, creating an inviting place to sit while adding depth and character to the bedroom. The generously upholstered seat is covered in Waxed Aniline Top Grain Leather, bringing natural warmth and character to the design. European Oak veneers in the Chestnut finish highlight the depth, movement, and natural character of the wood grain, creating a beautiful complement to the leather. Tapered legs lend grace and balance to the bench's streamlined silhouette. A textured aged brass metal stretcher connects the legs and introduces an architectural detail that distinguishes the design. The warmth of the aged brass provides a sophisticated contrast to the Chestnut finished wood and leather, bringing another layer of visual interest to the piece.
